Therefore, we recommend that you exercise creating sample essays on various subjects.

You can see how they are done in method.

Essay Writing

An essay is a formal piece of writing that methodically analyses and evaluates a topic or issue. Essay writing is your opportunity to show how well you can apply your learning.

It is vital to create a plan before you start writing your essay. A good plan will provide the foundations for a structured and coherent essay. Before starting, write out a bullet point list of the main points and then organise them into logical order.

Checklist:

- Introduction
- Development
- Conclusion

Begin with a strong introduction that clearly outlines your overall point of view.

Who is to blame for the death of Eva Smith in 'An Inspector Calls'?

Each character in J.B. Priestley's 'An Inspector Calls' can be blamed for the death of Eva Smith. However, Mr Birling should be given the most blame because of his derogatory attitude to people from the working classes...

Support all of your points and ideas with well-selected examples.

Mr Birling is to blame as he cannot accept the responsibility that people have to help others: 'a man has to make his own way'. He is proud of his own success and believes others, such as Eva, should cope without his help. He believes everyone should follow the same path as him without seeing the obstacles they face. He suffers from pride and ignorance, believing that he was right to dismiss Eva Smith for asking for a small pay rise.

Use embedded quotes to evidence your points. Try to ensure the quotes flow within your writing.

Birling tells Eric to 'keep out of this' as he cannot accept that other people can change his opinion, continuing to be narrow-minded. Birling even states that he 'can't accept any responsibility', emphasising his stubborn nature. Birling ignores the fact that from the moment Eva Smith had to leave his employment, her life began to unravel.

Use subject terminology where appropriate to demonstrate understanding.

Birling uses hyperbole that accentuates his selfish and ignorant nature: 'If you don't come down hard on these people they'd soon be asking for the earth'. He sees a request for a small pay rise as a threat to 'the earth'. This idea that reveals Birling's fear of losing control, and his need to secure his wealth while others struggle. His derogatory use of the pronoun 'these' and impersonal noun 'people' implies that he sees the working classes as a collective group which he distances by a lack of a name.

Use discourse markers and conjunctions to connect, organise and manage your sentences and paragraphs.

While Mrs Birling rejects Eva Smith's plea for help, she is naturally distanced from Eva by her class. Mr Birling should be more sympathetic as his higher status was strengthened by marriage to a woman of higher class. Furthermore, he still seeks the approval of those who can give him higher status: 'I was almost certain of a knighthood'. He should have helped Eva Smith in the same way in which he expects to be helped by others.

Consider counter-arguments.

Mr Birling stubbornly avoids guilt by sheltering himself from the reality of those less privileged. Near the end of the play, he finishes off one girl's death by saying it was all a joke. He says to Sheila: 'You'll have a good laugh over it yet!' Mr Birling deserves the most blame and least sympathy as he gives no sympathy to others.

Conclude with strong personal responses and a quotation that sums up your argument.

Paragraphs are groups of related sentences. There should be a new paragraph for each new point.

Once you have finished your essay, remember to check your spelling, punctuation and that all information included is correct.
